

Arculus™ Brings the Next Generation of Crypto Security to Bitcoin 2022

December 16, 2021

Arculus partners with the world's largest Bitcoin conference to distribute 25,000 crypto security cards during the April event in Miami Beach, Florida

Somerset, N.J., December 15, 2021 —CompoSecure Holdings, L.L.C. ("CompoSecure"), a leading provider of premium financial payment cards and an emergent provider of cryptocurrency storage and security solutions, today announced its Arculus business has partnered with Bitcoin 2022 to provide each of the estimated 25,000 conference attendees a custom-designed Arculus Key™ Card crypto security solution.

"Crypto is going mainstream and Bitcoin 2022 attendees, among the savviest crypto market participants, will lead the way to secure their crypto," said Adam Lowe, Chief Innovation Officer of Arculus. "As more people buy cryptocurrencies, hacks are expected to continue to rise, and Arculus, which literally means "strong box", is positioned to become the new standard in securing an individual's digital assets."

The Arculus Key Card and Arculus Wallet™ App work together with a one-of-a-kind 3-factor authentication security solution to make it simple, safe and secure to store, buy, swap, send and receive cryptocurrency.

"The Arculus Card is a new cold storage product that we are excited to get in the hands of everyone attending the largest Bitcoin event in the world," said David Bailey, CEO of BTC Media, "BTC works hard to educate our audience on the very best innovation on the market to protect their digital assets, and allow for easier use for the largest community."

Your Arculus Card uses a secure element to store your encrypted private keys, meaning your crypto keys remain in your possession. Transactions require three factors of authentication combining:

- Something You Are – Your app will authenticate with your unique biometrics.
- Something You Know – Your app will ask you to input your private 6-digit PIN.
- Something You Have – Your Arculus Key Card contains an EAL 6+ embedded secure element that holds your encrypted private keys. Simply tap the card to your phone to complete your transaction.

The new co-branded Bitcoin 2022 Arculus Key Card to be distributed at the Miami Beach event in April 2022 is an example of a non-custodial private key management solution offering the Arculus Key Card and Arculus Wallet App's security, privacy and ease of use. Whale Pass attendee (VIPs with added benefits at the conference) will receive an exclusively designed, limited-edition Bitcoin 2022 Arculus Whale Key Card. Cryptocurrency exchanges, financial institutions and other fintechs can add their own branding for a best-in-class white-label solution, offering their customers safe storage of their cryptocurrency.
